CUBISTS OUT-CUBED AND FUTURISTS OUT-FUTURED IN LATEST ATROCITIES PERPETRATED BY MAD MODISTES OF GAY PAREE

Paris, April 26.—The cubists, out-cubed, the futurists out-futured, the Tower of Babel principle turned loose in costume, all are indicated in the gowns worn by women at the spring race meet on the Longchamps race course.

Paris, home of fashion, has outdone herself. Fashion had denoted a bit of novelty for the season, and the novelty here has gone so far that it seems like a prophecy of an unapproachable state of garmentary chaos. The garb worn by these women presents no semblance of reality. It transcends all established ideas of feminine wear and presents a caricature of what is generally considered dainty and fitting.

The word had gone out that the waist line might perhaps be made less narrow and be masked by drooping waists. Thereupon my sensationleving lady appears at Longchamps with a dress that has no waist line whatever, which depends from the torso like a piece of gunny sacking and presents for waist line only a horizontal crease halfway between knees and bust.

The tunic was to have been in favor, after the fashion of the Russian blouse. The vest was suggested as another possibility. Thereupon Mademoiselle Parisienne prances to view the ponies clad in a garment that started out to be a vest but decided to be a tunic.

The Orient so far as Turkey and the Balkan peninsula has been adopted as a possible source of fashions. The daring lady of Paris put on seven-league boots and hop-skip-and-jumped all the way to Japan and back, bringing with her the wide wash and flowered loose-fitting garment of the geisha girl. Below this so-called jacket appears the hobbles skirt of almost trouserish tendency. Then, the draped skirt being accepted as fashionable, the gay demoiselle folds it in such a way that it assumes the director's effect and reveals one nether limb for several silhouetted centimetres.

And the hats! The hats absolutely beggar description. Long-dead Aztec chiefs have been robbed of their flamingo-feather head dresses, the blue-jay shorn of his topknot and the emphatic sentence ravaged of its exclamation point to top off these costumes.

And the jabberwock went slithering through the slimy wood! Oh, frabjous day, calico, calico! 4-53-66-21. Rackety cax, co-as! Whirr-r-r-r. I'm a dodo. Call the bug wagon.

CHARMING AND CHIC ARE SOME SUFFRAGETTES

GOSSIP FROM ENGLISH CAPITAL GIVES SOME SIDELIGHTS UPON THE PROMINENT PERSONAGES IDENTIFIED WITH WOMEN'S ACTIVITY IN GREAT BRITAIN.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

London, April 26.—If all the English suffragettes had the charm of Miss Zelle Emerson, the American girl, who went to jail "for the cause," equal suffrage would soon triumph in England, in the opinion of the prison authorities at the Holloway jail where Emerson was confined. Even the doctors who were required to feed her forcibly express the highest admiration for her pluck and cheerfulness.

Miss Emerson's good nature and wit made her a favorite among the prison officials, and it is doubtless true that she received better treatment than many of her English sisters. One of the attaches of the American consulate who visited Miss Emerson at Holloway said that she was one of the most charming girls he had ever met and expressed the hope that the state department would require him to repeat the visit.

Mrs. R. H. Emerson, Miss Zelle's mother, is deeply distressed by a statement made by Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst some time ago at a public meeting. Previously, in the house of commons, reference had been made by a speaker to a militant suffragette in the Holloway jail who had sought to give herself pneumonia by lying uncovered on her cot after sponging her body with warm water. Mrs. Pankhurst said that this suffragette was Miss Emerson. Mrs. Emerson and her friends consider that Mrs. Pankhurst displayed bad taste in making the incident public and the relations between them are said to have become rather strained.

One of the odd features of the situation is the change in feeling experienced by American mothers who go to the American embassy to ask aid in having their suffragette daughters released from jail. The mother usually arrives in London, alone and unheralded, in a state of humiliation or mortification over her daughter's plight. Such a one stepped into the embassy recently, having arrived in London but an hour before. She implored the staff to use their best efforts to conceal news of her daughter's imprisonment. Were it made public, she said, weeping with shame, she could never again gaze her neighbors at home.

The militant suffragettes took the mother in charge. They persuaded her that her daughter's imprisonment was a signal honor. Two days later, with head held high and eyes blazing, the mother strode into the embassy and demanded to know why the American people had not been told that her heroic daughter was suffering martyrdom in an English jail. On her second visit a band of militant suffragettes accompanied her.

A Charming Suffragette. Another American girl who has covered herself with suffragette glory, albeit not by serving a prison sentence—is Miss Lillian Scott Troy, of San Francisco. Miss Troy is a writer and a woman of means. She is petite and chic, and a firm advocate of woman suffrage, although she is not a member of the English suffragette organization. In the campaign for Miss Emerson's release from jail she took a leading part.

She achieved her greatest distinction, however, in the days of the great dock strike. Her heart was moved with pity by the plight of the wretched children of the idle strikers. She gave one little urchin her dinner. Within a few minutes there were dozens of hungry mouths to be fed. Miss Troy then began a systematic plan of feeding all hungry children of the strikers. At first it looked as if the strike would last but a few days. As month after month dragged by, however, with the strike still in force, Miss Troy stuck to her self-appointed task. When the strikers gave in, she had given their hungry youngsters 96,000 meals.

Miss Troy thus made herself the idol of the strikers. Thousands of them knew her and would fight for her at the drop of the hat. When the delegation of suffragettes went to the Holloway jail to serenade Miss Emerson, Miss Troy called on the strikers for a bodyguard. From the hundreds who responded, a suitable guard was selected. It accompanied the suffragettes to the jail and the usual display of rowdiness was changed to a program as orderly as a Wednesday night prayer meeting.

Martyr to the Cause. Although Mrs. Pankhurst went to jail—and was afterward released through a hunger strike—because of her assumption of responsibility for burning the house of the chancellor of the exchequer, she has not even now the slightest knowledge of the identity of the real perpetrators of the deed, according to members of the suffragettes' organization.

This, they assert, holds true in all the depredations committed by suffragettes. They are merely accepted as volunteers for "war service." No questions are asked; the volunteers are left to their own initiative. However, they generally work in pairs; and unless they are caught in the act, not even members of their own organization know what deeds they are responsible for.

Whatever John Bull may think of it, attaches at the American embassy are praying that the suffragettes' warfare will soon end. American mothers seeking the embassy's service in freeing their imprisoned daughters harass and heckle them no less than the English suffragettes harass their own political leaders. Almost everyone at the embassy becomes depressed every time a strange woman enters the place.

Worrying About Page's Clothes. Another question which will soon come up for settlement at the embassy concerns the clothing which Walter H. Page, the new ambassador, will wear on dress occasions. Whether to shine in gilt, braid and brass buttons or seek the spotlight even more by wearing conventional evening clothes at daylight functions—a problem that has given many a diplomat a headache—is to be settled by Mr. Page himself. He will have precedents for choosing either horn of the dilemma. The government allows him to use his own discretion in the matter, but fashionable London is awaiting his verdict with unsparring eyes.

ON SANTA ROSA ISLE.

By Beatrice Williams.

(Sung to the tune of "Where the River Shannon Flows.")

There's a pretty spot in Florida, Not very far away, Where the wind is soft and balmy, And the sunbeams ever play. To Santa Rosa Island, The place I long to be, Where the dashing waves so wild I always love to see.

Chorus.
That's where my heart is longing, It's the place I love so dear, Where the band is always playing That old tune, "Grizzly Bear." That's the place I am agoing, When summer comes again, Meet me there upon the Island, On Santa Rosa sand.

Soon the boat will be steaming, And the moon will be brightly beaming, And I love the boat that takes me To Santa Rosa Isle. I'd love to stay forever Where the wind it is so mild And I'm going there in summer To Santa Rosa Isle.

Overworked. Doctor Crabbe had almost succeeded in dismissing Mrs. Gasaway, when she stopped in the doorway, exclaiming: "Why, doctor, you didn't look to see if my tongue was coated!"

"I know it isn't," said the doctor, wearily. "You never find grass on a race track."—Judge.

She Couldn't Resist That. "Tow, dear, I wish you wouldn't use cigarettes. You know what's in them." "Yes. For the mere penny a cigarette costs, you get nicotine, valer-

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE SAVES WORRY, SAVES MONEY, SAVES THE HAIR

If you want to free your head of dandruff and stop falling hair, you must sooner or later resort to Newbro's Herpicide.

By using Herpicide first you save yourself worry, which is desirable, you save money, which is a consideration, and you save your hair, which is the most important of all.

Why not profit by the experience of Mrs. S. A. Lee, of 110 South 4th St., Richmond, Va., who writes:

"Four years' residence in India ruined my hair until it was but two inches long and very thin. I tried everything in Europe and America without benefit until I was induced to use Herpicide. My hair is now long, soft and silky and natural color, while before it was quite gray. My friends never tire of admiring my hair."

Mrs. Lee's story is a typical history of hair troubles. After everything else fails Newbro's Herpicide brings relief. It would be just as effective if used first.

Newbro's Herpicide makes the accumulation of dandruff impossible and prevents falling hair. It stops itching of the scalp almost instantly. No matter what the claims of others, Herpicide is the only "genuine original dandruff germ destroyer."

Newbro's Herpicide in 50c and $1.00 sizes is sold by all dealers who guarantee it to do all that is claimed. If you are not satisfied your money will be refunded.
